Allowing this time to dry, and still using the pictures as a guide, he filled in the outlines with transparent colors, the body for which was white varnish. When this wa done he put the slides aside until they should be dry enough to handle. While George felt perfectly confident that his magio lantern would prove a success he yet did not wish to risk an exhibition with it until he had made a trial of it in private. That he was pleased and satisfied with the result was indicated by his proposing to exhibit with it on the next evening our friends were at his house. The boys all knew what George had been about during the last few days, but when questioned they had found him very reticent as to his success or failure. About nine o clock in the evening came the first intimation of the coming treat; it was in the shape of George walking into the sitting-room wearing a white sheet drooped about his shoulders like a toga. What is the meaning of this? his mother inquired, quickly. With your permission, mother, and that of our guests, I am goiDg to give an exhibition with my magic lantern. Your magic lantern? his mother surprisedly said, not knowing what George had been about during these last few days. I was not aware that you had one. Oh, yes, it is an old story now. I made it...
